Governor Heineman Issues Proclamation Declaring Nebraska State College System Month in October

Nebraska Governor Dave Heineman proclaimed the month of October as Nebraska State College System (NSCS) Month for the state. At the proclamation ceremony, the Governor encouraged students to visit the member institutions in the Nebraska State College System – Chadron, Peru, and Wayne State Colleges – during this month.

Governor Heineman stated in the proclamation, "I urge all interested students and their families to take note of the observance by personally visiting and learning more about Chadron, Peru and Wayne State Colleges during this month to discover the quality and variety of educational programs offered at our state colleges and the affordability of earning an education from these institutions."

Nebraska State College System Month is just part of a new brand identity campaign for the system. In 2004, the NSCS Board of Trustees' created an Enrollment and Marketing Committee to discuss the recommendations of the LR 174 Higher Education Task Force and determine ways to increase enrollment, retention and graduation rates.

"In order to meet the recommendations of the LR 174 Task Force, the Nebraska State College System needed a plan to lead us in a unified direction," NSCS Chancellor Stan Carpenter said. "The first step though was conducting research that would assist us in this effort."

After months of research, a new brand identity campaign was launched by the system in February 2005. A collaborative plan was developed for the system, along with three distinct plans for Chadron, Peru and Wayne State Colleges.

Representatives from the system attended the Governor's Proclamation Ceremony. They included: Carter "Cap" Peterson, NSCS Trustee from Wayne; Micki Willis, Director of Admissions at Peru State College; Alex Greenwood, Director of Marketing and Public Affairs at Peru State; Sheri Irwin, NSCS Public Relations Director; NSCS Chancellor Stan Carpenter, and Governor Dave Heineman.

"The brand identity campaign will allow us to collaborate to increase awareness about the Nebraska State College System. We have incorporated a new logo and tagline that better represents our system and are currently working on new initiatives with select target markets," NSCS Director of Public Relations Sheri Irwin said.

One of these initiatives is to bring new information to guidance counselors during the Nebraska State College System Tour 2005, which will kick off on September 8. Irwin and the committee are also currently completing a series of recruitment DVDs that will debut this fall.

"By increasing the awareness of the Nebraska State College System, we increase enrollment, retention and graduation rates. This will also benefit each college by assisting with alumni development, attracting new faculty and personnel, and fundraising," Carpenter said.

Park Named 10th President of Chadron State

Dr. Janie Park

A new era began at Chadron State when Dr. Janie Park began her duties the new president in August. Park, who came from Montana, is the institution's 10th president. She succeeds Dr. Thomas Krepel, who left the position in June after seven years.

Park said under her leadership Chadron State will continue to serve the students of western Nebraska and the surrounding states with affordable, high quality academic programs in a caring and vital campus environment. She added, "I would also like to see Chadron State work in partnership with the community of Chadron and the greater region CSC serves to help solve the problems the communities are facing demographically and economically."

The new president has been provost and academic vice chancellor and professor of biological sciences at Montana State University-Billings since 1996. At MSU-Billings, she managed six colleges, the honors program and academic support services. She was also responsible for a $20 million budget, academic assessment, and evaluations.

Before becoming the chief academic officer at MSU-Billings, she was dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at MSU-Billings for three years. She also was associate dean of the College of Science and Liberal Arts at the Florida Institute of Technology at Melbourne for three years.

Park is the first woman to serve as CSC president. Interestingly, she is the second vice president from the MSU-Billings to be hired for Chadron State's top position in recent years. Dr. Samuel Rankin was academic vice president at the Billings institution, then known as Eastern Montana College, for three years before beginning a 12-year tenure as president at Chadron State in 1986.

Park said Chadron State and MSU-Billings share many similarities and noted that like CSC, MSU-Billings started as a Normal School for teacher education. She looks forward to tackling the unique challenges facing Chadron State.

"One big challenge in serving the vast region CSC serves is the difficulty in providing access to higher education for placebound students," she said. "Remote delivery methods, such as interactive television and online learning, are essential to serve such a vast region."

Park and her husband, Tom, have two adult children, Chris and Eric. They also have three grandchildren, Melanie, Ryan and Ashten.

NSCS Student Trustees Appointed by Governor

Governor Dave Heineman appointed Carla Giger of Chadron; Heath Christiansen of Verdon, and Lucas Virgil of Weston as student representatives on the Nebraska State College System Board of Trustees. The students will serve on the board during the 2005-06 academic year.

Carla Giger

A Chadron State senior in the fall, Giger is a justice and legal studies major with a minor in political sciences. She has been the political science club secretary and a member of the legal studies club.

Giger has also been a supplemental instructor and peer tutor, and residence hall representative on CSC Student Council. She is currently an administrative assistant for the county attorney.

Heath Christiansen

Christiansen is a computer management information systems and marketing major at Peru State. He has been actively involved in PSC Student Senate as a senator-at-large, secretary of the technology committee, and chair of the executive committee.

He has also been treasurer of Phi Beta Lambda, member of the Nebraska Delta Chapter of Alpha Chi, and a residence life mentor. He was also a mentor for the youth entrepreneur program. He will be a senior this fall.

Lucas Virgil

Virgil is majoring in political science with minors in history and pre-law. He has been a resident assistant in Neihardt Hall and member of the hall council, student activities board, and Phi Beta Lambda.

A junior at Wayne State this fall, Virgil helped found the group, Democracy Matters, on the Wayne campus. The group later changed the name to Student Liberties Action Movement (SLAM) and Virgil served as secretary.

Tour To Deliver the Hottest in Higher Ed

The inaugural Nebraska State College System Tour 2005 kicks off in Omaha at Park Place Regency Inn, September 8. With a five-city schedule, the tour is a system effort featuring Chadron, Peru and Wayne State Colleges.

Guidance counselors statewide were invited to join the system along the tour to hear updates from the colleges, view fresh videos from the system and win prizes that will make their mouth water. Other stops include Lincoln at Chase Suites, Norfolk at Divots Conference Center, Kearney at The Great Platte River Road Archway Monument and and Scottsbluff at the Country Club.

The counselors were invited via pizza-boxed invitations marked "Delivering the HOTTEST in Higher Education." NSCS Director of Public Relations Sheri Irwin said the positive response from counselors has been amazing.

"They appreciated finding the unique invitation during their first week back at school and have taken the time to express interest in the tour. This is the first time our system has offered a statewide tour, and we have fun-filled breakfast and luncheons planned," Irwin said.

For more information or for guidance counselors to RSVP, please call Sheri at (402) 471-2505 or email her at sirwin@nscs.edu.

Three colleges... thousands of opportunities.
CHADRON STATE PERU WAYNE STATE

Chancellor's Message:

At the beginning of a new academic year, college campuses are wonderfully exciting places. The energy from the new and returning students is contagious. Personnel who worked all summer long brighten when the students begin to move in. Unfortunately, here in the office in Lincoln, we have to experience this vicariously through our colleagues. Let me assure you though that we have also been working diligently all summer to continue to strengthen our system.

Often what administration does and how it contributes to the success of a system is not well understood. Therefore, I wanted to explain the mission of the System Office and highlight some of our recent efforts.

Our office is responsible for the financial viability of the system. We provide strategic leadership to our colleges and coordinate and allocate services and resources among our colleges. The services range from connecting with the Governor and Unicameral to coordinating audits to providing support services and standards to developing a system-wide marketing plan that will increase our enrollments, retention and graduation rates. We provide strength and unity in an effort to make sure our students and the state of Nebraska are well served.

Our overall mission is service and leadership, and that is pretty straightforward. Our goal is to provide service to NSCS institutions – to assure that they sustain and improve the excellent teaching-learning environments of Chadron, Peru and Wayne State Colleges.

As system administrators, we do not serve our students directly. That is we do not enroll students, collect tuition, teach classes, or give grades. The colleges provide teaching-learning-research services. Our purpose is to assure that our colleges are stronger and better as a system than they would be separately. Working together as a system, we have many more resources, ideas and, of course, opportunities.

Due to many new efforts – both at the colleges and through the System Office – prospective students and their parents, current students, guidance counselors, librarians, and others are asking to know more about us – not just as a system alone, but as three unique, quality colleges that work together and are known as the Nebraska State College System.

This energy and excitement within our system wasn't always as apparent as it is today. We are all working together – Chadron, Peru and Wayne State, along with the System Office and Board of Trustees – to strengthen our entire system, serve our students and benefit the state of Nebraska.

CSC Expands Distance Delivery Courses

Pat Hoffman, CSC distance learning coordinator, demonstrates the college's interactive television system while displaying a real-time view of the Scottsbluff classroom.

Access to Chadron State College academic programs has been greatly expanded for this fall. Sixteen programs can now be completed through the college's distance delivery system.

"Several of our programs can be completed anywhere Internet connections are available," said Steve

Taylor, assistant vice president of extended campus programs. "This is a big help for many who are seeking a college degree, but are unable to study on a campus."

Undergraduate majors available entirely through distance learning are general business, information resource management, mathematics, and psychology. Minors are available in the same programs, as well as applied statistics, history, and library information management. Endorsements are available in library media specialist and math.

On the graduate level, Chadron State now has master's degrees available via distance learning in mathematics and business administration. Taylor said the latter program is designed for working professionals who wish to earn an MBA. The courses needed to complete the degree will be available online in eight-week segments and are not sequenced, so a student can begin the courses at any time during the program.

Taylor noted that Chadron State is also offering master's degrees in elementary and secondary education entirely online with the exception of two two-week courses that must be taken on campus during one summer.

In addition, Chadron State offers more than 30 courses in Scottsbluff this fall and 15 in Alliance, North Platte and Sidney over its interactive television system.

Research May Help Answer Questions at Hudson-Meng Site

Jennifer Balmat and Dr. Mike Leite conducting research at the Hudson-Meng Bonebed.

Research conducted this summer by Chadron State student Jennifer Balmat might someday help answer the big question surrounding the Hudson-Meng Bison Bonebed northwest of Crawford. What killed the buffalo?

The first investigator of the site, which is estimated to be nearly 10,000 years old, was Dr. Larry Agenbroad in the early 1970s. Then an earth science professor at CSC, he believed it was Paleo-Indians who ran the bison off a cliff and butchered them.

About 20 years later, Dr. Larry Todd of Colorado State University and Dr. Dave Rapson of the University of Wyoming reopened the bonebed and speculated that a natural catastrophe, such as lightning, fire or a blizzard, was the culprit.

Dr. Mike Leite, CSC earth science professor, suggested to Balmat that she partner with him to take a look at the situation. During their research, they discovered some softball-sized limestone chunks buried beneath the surface.

"They're too big to have either been washed or blown here. It's like they fell off of something," said Leite, who added that he is trying to keep an open mind on all the hypotheses about how the bison died. "We probably won't solve everything by ourselves, but maybe we can provide some information that will be useful in the final analysis. If the sediment that we find on top of the bones is coarse and gravel-like, that probably means it was washed there by water. If it's fine and silty, it probably means the wind blew it in."

Balmat, who is assisted by her husband, Joshua, received a $5,000 grant provided by Ray Graham, a Rapid City resident who owns land in Sioux County where the Hudson-Meng site is located. Balmat said it's too soon to make any conclusions, but hopes to wrap up her project early this fall.

CSC Health Care Program Helps Students

This fall medical appointments are available for Chadron State students free of charge for the second year in a row. Ann Dockweiler, CSC school nurse, said a large number of students on campus do not have insurance or any way of paying for medical expenses and as a result do not seek the medical attention they need. The CSC clinic makes health care possible for everyone.

Four local physician assistants and one nurse practitioner are serving the students: Jim Allen, Heidi Wess, Mike Westerbuhr, Mary Moody and Nicole Dodd. Dockweiler said the clinic, which opened Dec. 3, 2004, had great success during the spring semester, averaging four to five patients each day for a total of 390. The clinic began as a pilot program sponsored by funding from initiatives of Vision 2011, the college's strategic plan.

Clinic funding comes from an increase in health fees from the $20 per semester for students with seven or more credit hours, to $2.50 per credit hour that will be capped at $30. Patients are responsible for extra expenses for lab work and medications.

Johnson's Wendy Alexander Thanked by Nebraska State College System

The Nebraska State College System Board of Trustees formally thanked Wendy Alexander from Peru State for her service as student trustee. An education major from Johnson, Alexander represented PSC students during the 2004-05 school year.

Board Chair Steve Lewis of Lexington presented Alexander with the certificate of appreciation during the summer board meeting in Lincoln. Representatives from Peru and Wayne were also honored.

Alexander worked at ESU #4 this summer. This fall, she will student teach in Auburn.

Peru State Announces Unprecedented Full-Scholarship for Graduate Students

Ken Boxley Scholarship Pays for Full Tuition, Fees, and Books

Teachers wishing to enhance their education with a masters degree now have an unprecedented opportunity at Peru State College in the form of a full-tuition scholarship, thanks to the generosity of a Peru State alumnus.

Ken Boxley of Beverly Hills, California, a prominent businessman and advocate of higher education, granted the state's first college the scholarships with the instruction that the awards go to professional educators seeking to increase their knowledge and skills. A limited number of Ken Boxley scholarships will be awarded to students pursuing a master's degree in curriculum and instruction through the graduate program at Peru State College. Selected students will receive full tuition, fees, and books during the 15-month program.

"Mr. Boxley's generosity and willingness to support education and professional educators is inspirational," said President Ben Johnson.

"For a man of his great success and stature to offer a hand of support to our students is a noble and truly superlative act."

Applicants must submit a resume, letter of support from their current supervising principal, three letters of recommendation from colleagues attesting to the applicant's current and future success as a classroom teacher, and a statement of professional goals and intention of how the student will use this scholarship to achieve their goals. Those selected must remain in the program for the entire 15 months or forfeit the scholarship.

"Ken Boxley has many philanthropic interests, primarily directed at the support of teacher education. Ken says that 'education is the answer to many, if not most, of the problems this nation faces today. And, the education of teachers is most important.' We are exceedingly grateful for his generosity."

Kennedy Accepts Internship with Lamar Outdoor Advertising

Jen Kennedy, a Peru State senior marketing management major, interned with Lamar Advertising in Omaha this summer. Lamar is one of the top three outdoor advertising companies in the United States.

An Omaha native, Kennedy spent three months assisting with many aspects of advertising. Dan Lombardo, general sales manager, said they decided to have her work with each of the departments, so she would gain experience in all areas.

"Jen went on business calls with account executives, learned how outdoor advertising was presented to clients, helped update our new figures, and spent time with our lease manager to experience the real estate end of our business," Lombardo said.

Kennedy was a work-study student in the Office of Marketing and Public Affairs for one year and impressed the director, Alex Greenwood, with her work ethic. When she expressed a desire to get some on-the-job experience in the private sector, Greenwood assisted her in getting the internship.

"This experience has given Jen a really good look into the private sector and the world of work. I am sure when she works in our office this year we will see examples of her experience in action. She has a bright future," Greenwood said.

Kennedy, who will graduate in May, plans to pursue a career in the advertising industry.

Board Chair Steve Lewis of Lexington presents former Peru State Student Trustee Wendy Alexander of Johnson with a certificate of appreciation.

Wayne State Business Students Score Highly on National Exam

Wayne State College's Master of Business Administration current year graduates averaged in the top ten percent of MBA graduates across the country taking the Educational Testing Service (ETS) MBA Major Field Test. Business programs from colleges and universities across the nation administer the exam to their graduating MBA students to assess their level of achievement and competency and to assess the quality of their MBA program. The comprehensive exam tests the students knowledge of marketing, management, finance, managerial accounting and strategic integration.

"We are excited about the results of our students on this outcomes-based exam," said Dr. Jeryl Nelson, director of the Master of Business Administration program. "We began using this test last year so we could compare our students against a national pool of students. The testing is done to assess the quality of our program relative to other MBA programs. It is clear from the test results that Wayne State College's MBA graduates are capable of making significant contributions to the businesses that employ them."

The department of Business and Economics is accredited by the International Assembly for Collegiate Business Education (IACBE). Program accreditation recognizes the achievement of quality in the academic business programs. It is one means of making certain graduates are well-equipped to join the business world. IACBE is especially interested in the outcomes assessment of education that takes place annually within the academic business unit.

Dr. Bob Roller, chair of the IACBE Board of Commissioners (second from left) presents Dr. Vaughn Benson, Dr. Bob McCue and Dr. Jeryl Nelson of WSC the accreditation certificate this spring.

Ashley Weede Works as CWS Ambassador

Wayne State College senior Ashley Weede of Cherokee, Iowa was one of eight Nebraska college and university students selected to be College World Series Ambassadors during the series in June. They were chosen from nearly 50 applicants from across the state.

The Ambassadors worked during the College World Series with local officials, service organizations that hosted the participating teams, and the NCAA.

"We had a variety of responsibilities," said Weede. "I worked in the VIP Club, where we helped sponsors and service organizations set up each morning. I also helped staff the NCAA Info Zone working with kids. They could get their photo taken with a replica of the CWS trophy or in their favorite team's uniform." She also worked in the NCAA office during the tournament.

Each Ambassador was assigned to a team; Ashley's was Arizona State. "I helped them with the team dinner, took them to an autograph session, and led them on the field," she said. "I was there to help if there were questions or if any of the players or their families needed something. It was a great experience." She is planning to visit Arizona State during spring break in 2006.

Weede, who has a double major in sports management and speech communication, will graduate from Wayne State in Dec. 2006.

"I will finish my coursework over the next year, and will then have an internship during the fall semester of 2006-07," she said. "I'm hoping to perhaps get one in the National Hockey League."

Ambassadors are invited to reapply for next year's College World Series, something that Ashley said she plans to do. "It didn't take long at all to decide that!" she said. "One of the neatest things about the experience was the chance to get to know the other Ambassadors. One of them – Audra Liebig from Chadron State – is now one of my best friends, and I didn't even know her before the College World Series!"

Ashley Weede (third from right) and seven other College World Series Ambassadors were chosen from nearly 50 applicants.

Jill Pullen Wins National Competition

Jill Pullen of Fremont, a Wayne State College senior majoring in elementary education with an early childhood endorsement, placed first nationally in SkillsUSA competition in Kansas City this summer. She earned the gold medal in Preschool Teaching Assistant competition, where contestants were evaluated on their ability to plan and present appropriate activities for children between the ages of three and five relating to a specific theme and demonstrate general knowledge of quality childcare.

SkillsUSA (formerly VICA) is a national organization serving more than a quarter-million high school and college students and professional members who are enrolled in training programs in technical, skilled, and service occupations, including health occupations. Representatives of business, industry, labor, and education judged contests in 80 skill and leadership development areas.

Earlier this year, Pullen and WSC senior industrial management major Rachel Racine of Norfolk each won first place in statewide SkillsUSA competition. Racine won in Architectural Drafting, while Pullen placed first in the Preschool Teaching Assistant category.

SkillsUSA sponsors at Wayne State College are Dr. Daryl Wilcox, Mary Sebade and Jason Novotny.

Hunter Receives Wayne State Alumni Achievement Award

Ronald W. Hunter, an Omaha attorney and a 1953 graduate of Wayne State, received the Alumni Achievement Award presented by the Wayne State Foundation this spring.

Hunter, who attended the University of Nebraska College of Law following graduation from WSC, graduated first in his law school class in 1955, serving as editor-in-chief of the Nebraska Law Review. Among the highlights of his law school years was when the Nebraska law school team, of which Hunter was a member, defeated heavily-favored Georgetown University in the finals of the National Moot Court Championship in New York City in 1953, denying Georgetown a third consecutive national championship. That team was the only Nebraska team to win the national championship in the last 50 years.

Throughout his career, Hunter served as a special agent in the Counter Intelligence Corps in the San Francisco Bay area. He worked counterespionage cases and became chief of control of top-secret clearance investigations for about 100 agents in northern California. He wrote a book about the American Communist Party, used to train agents and was given the Army Commendation Award. In 1964, he started a law firm in Omaha.

Hunter was elected president of the Western Heritage Society in Omaha in 1975. The society was attempting to convert the abandoned Union Station into a museum. Hunter led the efforts to open the museum, saving the depot from destruction. He was re-elected president of the museum for nine terms.

Hunter lives in Omaha. He has four sons and two daughters.

Peru State Alum Finds Success with Cirque du Soleil

Karen Gay believes that the experiences she had at Peru State set her on the right path to succeed. Having worked the past seven years with internationally-known Cirque du Soleil, producers of some of the world's most unique and acclaimed live theatre productions, Gay said it was her college opportunities in all aspects of theatre that prepared her for the world of theatre.

Gay attributes her accomplishments to Peru State professors, who had a philosophy of theatre practice called learning by doing. She said her counterparts who went into theatre at universities had to wait until their junior year in college to get to work backstage or audition.

"My freshman year I was doing props, stage management, lighting, some piece of every show," she said. "The reason I have succeeded is because by doing that you learn all the pieces. I speak the language of everyone in the company. I can communicate and empathize. Had I not had that 'learning by doing' platform it could have been so different. I absolutely attribute everything to that."

Gay, who graduated from Peru State in 1984 with her twin sister Diane (Coover) Emanuel, has been putting those skills to work as company manager of the Cirque du Soleil hit Mystere at the Treasure Island resort in Las Vegas. In June, Gay began a new job with the company as director of public, social and cultural affairs for its shows in Las Vegas and Orlando, as well as upcoming programming in California.

After graduating from Peru State in 1984, the Papillion native attended graduate school and worked at theatre companies in Omaha. She also formed "Beyond the Pale" a band that featured acoustic folk, Irish, Scottish, English and American music with two theatre friends and produced an album in 1992.

In 1995, while touring nationally with 42nd Street, she was hired as company manager of the Starlight Express at the Las Vegas Hilton. More than a year later, she moved to Cirque du Soleil.

Her new position brings her into an arena close to her heart. Her role now is not operations but opportunities. She now gets to give back to the community.

"Since its beginnings, Cirque has set aside one percent of our gross revenue for social circus programs in 17 developing countries. It's about helping people, specifically youth-at-risk, realize their potential."

Married to Stephen Gay, she has three stepchildren, Don, 20, a marine serving in Africa; Stephen, 16 and Alexis, 14. They reside in Boulder City, just outside of Las Vegas.

Alumnus Returns as Visiting Scholar

Dr. Ken Emonds, who received Chadron State College's Distinguished Alumni Award and was the speaker at commencement in May, will return to the campus as a visiting scholar Sept. 6-10.

Emonds, who hitchhiked from his home in Connecticut to enroll at CSC in 1966, is founder and clinical director of the New England Center for Orthomolecular and Environmental Medicine at North Hampton, N.H. He works with patients who are victims of cancer, autoimmune diseases and illnesses related to the environment.

He has pioneered the use of electrodermal titration to create a safer, more efficient system of allergy testing and treatment, and has developed a new generation of deproteinized allergy extracts for inhalants, foods, chemicals, viral and bacterial extracts and autogenous vaccines.

While on campus, Dr. Emonds will speak to health professions, nutrition and psychology classes and renew acquaintances with several long-time friends.
